Every child deserves to enjoy youth to the fullest. But for some young people, psychological problems can stand in the way-and these difficulties may take root long before the "troubled teens." As a professional who works with children daily, you know first-hand the challenges some preteens face. And, we know the challenges you may face in pinpointing the source of pre-adolescent issues. Now, there's a comprehensive tool specifically designed to help you quickly and accurately identify psychological problems in children ages 9-12: the Millon®; Pre-Adolescent Clinical Inventory (M-PACI®). Unlike instruments that focus on a single clinical area such as anxiety or depression, the M-PACI assessment provides an integrated view that synthesizes the child's emerging personality styles and clinical syndromes, helping clinicians detect early signs of Axis I and Axis II disorders. Effective and efficient, the M-PACI can help you arrange early intervention on difficulties that may keep students from making the most of their preteen years-and these, if left undetected, can lead to bigger heartaches down the road.

How to Use This Test The M-PACI is used for pre-adolescent assessment in outpatient, inpatient, day treatment, and residential treatment settings. Psychologists, psychiatrists, school psychologists, counselors, juvenile justice professionals, and other mental health professionals can use M-PACI results to help: Evaluate troubled pre-adolescents to confirm diagnostic hypotheses. Contribute to individualized treatment planning by providing an integrated picture of emerging personality patterns and current clinical signs. Measure progress before, during, and after treatment.
